

BKLYN BookMatch Teen: COVID-19 Day of Remembrance

BookMatch Teen marks COVID Remembrance Day with a list of some of the titles that got them through this past year.

Created by bkbookmatchteen

We are the ants

Shaun David Hutchinson.

Heroes of Olympus.

Rick Riordan.

"This is nowhere near a new, or under-hyped series, but going back to these fun, somewhat juvenile modern classics has brought me some joy in the bleak quarantine months. If nothing else (though, I'd argue, there's much else), watching a fictional world fall closer to collapse than society feels can...

The invisible life of addie larue [electronic resource].

Schwab, V. E.

"I read this book after seeing it on multiple "sure to make you cry" recommendations - and I'll say it earned its place. In a daily life that can feel monotonous, a book like this, with such immersive writing, well-developed characters, and a promising concept, is something of a blessing. For me at...

ANNIE ON MY MIND [electronic resource].

GARDEN, NANCY.

"This book is sort of a lesbian YA classic. It was published in 1982 and has been the victim of many homophobic book challenges. I should have read it forever ago when my gf gifted me her copy, but earlier in quarantine (maybe late spring, early summer?) I finally got around to it. It is so sweet, s...

Felix ever after

Callender, Kacen, author.

"(Trigger Warning: worth mentioning cuz borderline hate crime) This is - if less super-happy-ending-escape-from-reality type, definitely worth the read. Of course I could yell about trans rep (Black trans masc woaaa) or tell you about the self-discovery & romance elements, but the part of this book I...

The song of Achilles

Madeline Miller.

"A retelling of a classic myth which reimagines the story of Achilles, the Greek Hero. This one is also LGBTQ+, and has some truly great battle scenes and gut-wrenching twists, even if you already know how the myth ends."

BKLYN BookMatch Teen: COVID-19 Day of Remembrance

BookMatch Teen marks COVID Remembrance Day with a list of some of the titles that got them through this past year.

Created by bkbookmatchteen

Hidden Valley Road : inside the mind of an American family

Kolker, Robert, author.

"I actually found out about this book through a friend, and found it fascinating. It's the true story of the Galvin family in the 1970s, who had six of their ten sons develop schizophrenia. Their contributions to science and neurology helped psychologists begin to understand the progression and deve...

Make up

Michelle Phan.

"This book is not only about makeup but also provides useful tips on how to act for a job interview and ways to develop confidence both on the outside and in the inside."