

Unionville Library Storytime - September 23rd 2017 - Books!

Books about books! While you can tell a story without the written word books make that story accessible to a much wider audience. This Storytime celebrated books and their ability to captivate our imaginations.

A library book for Bear

Bonny Becker ; illustrated by Kady MacDonald Denton.

Bear has seven books in his home that that's all he needs, the library that mouse brings him too has entirely too many books! Or does it?

Otto the book bear

Katie Cleminson. --

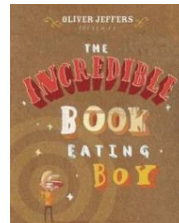

Otto lives in a book, but when the family that owns his book moves away Otto is left behind. What's a poor little book bear to do but find a new place to live?

The wonderful book

Leonid Gore. --

We all have our own uses for books, just like the various forest creatures in this wonderful book.

The incredible book eating boy

by Oliver Jeffers.

Not read at Storytime due to length. It's a fun little tale about a boy with a taste for the written word, literally. But isn't it better to read books than eat them? Read this book to find out.
